

The White Horse of Uffington, is a gigantic figure (374'x130') carved deep into a Berkshire hillside by ancient Celts (50 BC - 50AD), in what is now southern England. The horse has always been an integral part of Celtic life. Horses appear frequently in their tales and myths as animals possessing special qualities.

"Schooling a Horse" - Rudolph Zeilinger

The ultimate aim of Rudolph Zeilinger's dressage training program is "to avoid any restriction on a horse's natural harmony and grace, and to encourage the horse's suppleness and sheer pleasure in its own movements."

Rudolph Zeilinger is the trainer of multiple Olympic and World Champion horses and riders. He is the trainer of Americans: Michelle Gibson (1996 Olympic Bronze Medalist), and Catherine Haddad (2007 World Cup Team member)
